

INVERTING PRISM

The diagram below shows 11 parallel rays of light incident on a trapezoidal, crown glass prism. Choose one of the numbered rays at random. On the diagram, trace the transmitted portion of your ray until it emerges from the prism. Just as each incident ray was assigned a number, each emergent ray can be assigned a number. Determine this number. Use the space provided below for your calculations.

